She likes grand...he prefers quaint. Bring them to Sundy House and suddenly they're in sync! "Eric and I were looking for a beautiful spot that we could agree on. When we first stepped into Sundy House, we both thought it was absolutely perfect! You walk right into a tropical oasis in which we fell in love. It was exactly what we were looking for."

And so it was on May 14, 2005 that 130 family members and friends gathered from Virginia, Chicago and south Florida to help Amy and Eric celebrate their wedding. Amy was gorgeous in a strapless gown accented with handmade roses and ruching, while Eric wore a classic Armani suit. Following their ceremony at St. Edward Church of Palm Beach, their lovely reception took place with accents of pink and green flowers, a three tiered stripe and polka dot cake and a delicious buffet with delectable desserts. To give their wedding a Delray Beach flare, Amy and her "maids" hand-painted votive candle holders with flamingoes and palm trees as place card holders and a memento for their guests.

"Our guests said it was the most beautiful wedding ever...the food was amazing...the dessert room was fantastic and the staff was so accommodating." It was such a special event that Amy's sister Kerry had her wedding at Sundy House two years later...

Perez/Gray Real Wedding Profile

Bride: Annabelle Perez
Groom: Tim Gray
Hometown: New Jersey
Date: June 2, 2007
Ceremony: Sundy House Gazebo
Reception: Mediterranean Room
Photographer: Susan Stripling

Annabelle and Tim wanted a unique venue for their wedding, somewhere special and not just another ballroom. Although they had already contracted with another hotel in the area, they realized Sundy House, a place they had visited many times before, was the perfect location. With family and friends traveling from all over, they were able to buy out the entire venue for the event. "They are extremely nice people who wanted to create an ambiance of fun and provide a different experience for their guests, allowing them to discover something new," Director of Catering Anayda Garcia recalls. With three planning trips down from New Jersey, Anayda worked hand in hand with wedding planner Jennifer Shaffer to create the wedding of their dreams.

On June 2, after days and days of rain, the skies were clear for the 5:30 ceremony. Colorful drinks and individual fans were presented to keep everyone cool and refreshed in the warm June afternoon. An intimate ceremony took place as Tim and Annabelle, gorgeous in a Monique Lhuillier gown and Kate Spade sandals, recited their vows inside the gazebo with only immediate family and a few close friends throughout the gardens watching them.

Soon afterward, all of their family members and friends gathered in the main bar and lobby lounge to begin celebrating the new Mr. and Mrs. Three signature caipirinah cocktails were offered created to highlight colors in the wedding: the "Blue Lagoon" for the pale blue dresses of the bridesmaids, and raspberry and watermelon caipirinahs for their pink bouquets. Honoring her Philippine heritage, Annabelle made sure to have a delicious array of sushi for guests to enjoy at the reception. A quiet and romantic dinner of beef tenderloin and lobster soon followed in the Mediterranean Room.

And then the party started! An amazing tent, complete with chandeliers and decorated in all white creating a 'South Beach after lounge vibe' played host for three hours of dancing and dessert, including a cupcake tower and a 'bride & groom' chocolate covered strawberries display that Annabelle surprised Tim with. Among the highlights from the evening were the sweet ballroom dance of the bride and her father as well as the groomsmen who surprised the happy couple dressed as Elvis and Superman and played their guitars for the upbeat and lively crowd! As the party came to a close, the rain returned! Off to their Anguillan honeymoon they went, happily ever after...with warm memories of Sundy House and plans to return again soon!
